

Occlusion Challenges for Everyday Clinical Practice

Occlusion has always been one of the most controversial and puzzling issues in dentistry, yet one of the most important. Unfortunately, little is known among general dentists regarding this critical topic

During daily practice, clinicians are faced with a diversity of cases that could be only managed by following evidence based occlusion principles, moreover occlusion is not merely a standalone island, and however it is interrelated to all dentistry branches.

Throughout this oral presentation, attendees will get an overview on basic occlusion concepts, functional esthetics and the value of implementing recent digital tools in rehabilitation cases.
